

Family Policies across the Globe

Editor

Mihaela Robila, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Family Studies
Queens College, City University of New York

Call for Chapters

The purpose of this book is to provide a comprehensive coverage of the different types of explicit and implicit family policies around the world, with a wide geographical representation, addressing family policy development, implementation and evaluation.

The book will advance theoretical understanding, shape policy, and inform practice by welcoming submissions from experts in family policies in different countries around the world. Various areas of explicit and implicit family policy will be examined, such as marriage, family-friendly work practices, work-life balance, childcare, poverty, domestic violence, social exclusion/inclusion, immigration, disability, etc., from an international perspective. The chapters will explore what types of family policies exist in different countries or geographical areas, what are some of challenges encountered in developing, implementing, and evaluating them, and provide recommendations for the policymaking process.

If interested in writing a chapter please contact Mihaela Robila (Mihaela.Robila@qc.cuny.edu), for details, required chapter structure and format.

Potential contributors are invited to submit their chapters by August 15, 2012. The manuscript should be of 25 double spaced pages (not including references), APA style.